

U.S. Plans To Increase Truck Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. air attacks on truck traffic moving down from Red China will be intensified as the weather improves in the upper part of North Viet Nam, sources said today.

Bad weather in that region is gradually shifting southward. In the past several weeks, U.S. fighter bombers have been raking truck traffic along routes connecting Hanoi with Red China.

This has been particularly true along routes leading north-eastward from Hanoi, an area which was not subjected to armed reconnaissance before last winter's bombing pause, the sources said.

Officials also forecast a substantial increase in the amount of such efforts at night, not only in the region between Hanoi and Red China but lower down in North Viet Nam, along roads leading toward South Viet Nam.

Poor weather has hampered such strafing strikes and has prevented accurate estimates of damage inflicted on truck convoys.

The Communists, trucks move mostly at night, when they are on the road during the day, are protected by camouflage.

U.S. sources said that, among other things, American pilots have found that the Reds have built trellises over certain stretches of highway and covered these structures with leaves and branches.

They told of an instance in which a plane zoomed low to check out what appeared to be a single truck and found 25 vehicles moving along the highway well masked by camouflage.

A variety of methods are used to ferret out nighttime truck traffic.

U.S. strike planes carry infrared sensors which can detect the heat from truck engines and thus betray the location of vehicles cloaked by darkness.

Where such traffic is suspected, U.S. planes eject flares with multimillion candle power brightness to light up the countryside.

Faubus Relaxes, Shuns Reelection

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus flopped back in his swivel chair and grinned. "I guess they'll believe I'm out of it now," he said.

The Democratic gubernatorial primary ticket had closed without Faubus' name on it for the first time since 1952, and Faubus now may be the most relaxed politician in Arkansas.

Many doubted until the ticket closed that Faubus could keep his promise to stay out of the race. He had indicated until about three weeks ago that he might run again — for a seventh term — if the Democratic party failed to produce a candidate he considered capable of challenging Republican Winthrop Rockefeller.

Rhodes Dodges Issue About Erie Waterway

ORWELL, Ohio (AP) — Questions on the proposed $1.25 billion Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal were dodged by Gov. James A. Rhodes during an appearance here to promote industry.

He told newsmen Wednesday that he did not know if he would take any stand on the canal. "The development department is studying it," he said.

Erie Lakeside Refugees Stream Back to Homes

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Thousands of refugees streamed back today to lakeside homes flooded Wednesday by gale force winds which swept Lake Erie waters over the shore.

Up to two or three feet of water remained trapped behind protective dikes in some areas and many homes remained without electric or gas service, shut off by utility companies as a precaution in flooded sections.

Damage ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars along a 60-mile section of lakefront stretching from near Detroit to 40 miles

Clean-up, Paint-up Drive Goes Countywide This Year

GETTING READY — This group placed special emphasis on a countywide "Clean-up, Paint-up Campaign" during this week's 4-H Officers and Advisers Conference at Jackson School. Activity pictured here centered on distribution of litter boxes, donated by the local Owens-Illinois plant, to 4-H members who will hand them out throughout the county. Left to right are: Earl Palm, president of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce that is sponsoring the campaign; Alfred Gehres, state 4-H Club leader; William Hall of Owens-Illinois and member of the Chamber Clean-up Committee; Joe Smith, chairman of the committee.

A countywide "Clean - up, Paint-up, Fix-up Campaign" will be in the spotlight throughout the week of May 2-8.

Both Circleville and Ashville will participate on a heavy scale. The entire county has been invited to take part.

Extensive planning has already been formulated for the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce sponsored project. The program will coincide with the annual housecleaning tasks that confront local homemakers.

The entire month of May has been designated a clean - up, paint-up period in Ohio. But the heavy emphasis in this community will be May 2-8.

MAYOR Ben Gordon of Circleville and Mayor Charles Morrison of Ashville have proclaimed the period as a time to spruce up their respective municipalities.

The Chamber of Commerce committee in charge this year is under the direction of Joe Smith. Assisting him are Harold Anderson, Ernest (Snap) Ankrom, William Hall, Dr. Robert Liggett and Dr. H. H. Shuttleworth.

Members of the panel define the campaign as a project to make the entire county as neat and attractive as possible. They are striving to make the effort a success through a spirit of cooperation and productive response by the public.

Organizations in Ashville and Circleville have agreed to promote the project. Many activities are on the planning board.

One of the highlights in both communities will be the hosing streets in the downtown areas. A brigade of local men, in cooperation with the Circleville Fire, Service and Water Departments, will perform the task here starting at the wee hours of 3 a. m. Monday. Volunteer firemen and businessmen will do the same at Ashville starting 7 p. m. Monday.

Additional activity in Ashville will include the distribution of posters, buttons and stamps to promote the clean-up idea. The Kiwanis Club there plans to paint the building adjacent to the new post office as one of its projects.

Also scheduled to take part will be school service clubs, Boys Scouts and 4-H members.

The Senior SOS Club at Circleville High School already has washed glass doors in the downtown. The Key Club will wash

U.S. Girl, 17, Hides Aboard British Sub

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The British submarine Walrus continued its journey home today with nothing but Her Majesty's sailors aboard — after having dropped off a stowaway teenage girl who said she wanted to visit England because she liked English boys.

The girl, Barbara McVay, 17, of Baltimore, is back with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turso.

The Walrus and two more British subs — the Osiris and the Opportune — were docked in Baltimore since last Thursday, following NATO maneuvers in the Atlantic.

When the Walrus left for home Wednesday, Barbara was hiding in the conning tower.

After four hours, exhaust fumes from the sub's engine sickened her and she turned herself in.

"It's a good thing she got sick," a police detective said later. He said the compartment where she hid would have filled with water if the sub had submerged.

U.S. Hopes Viet Tide To Turn

Planning Pointed To Early in '67

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials hope to turn the tide of war decisively against Communist forces in South Viet Nam by early next year.

The hope is tentative and authorities concede it could be upset by adverse military or political developments in the months ahead.

Nevertheless, it defines an important purpose of present strategic planning. President Johnson's advisers believe it represents a reasonable projection of the recent course of the war in Viet Nam plus the probable results to be obtained from the planned massive buildup of U.S. forces.

The critical point will be reached, strategists say, when manpower losses suffered by Communist forces under the pounding of American, South Vietnamese and allied troops and American planes begins to exceed the Communist capacity to replace manpower.

The estimate that this point can be reached by early next year is expected to figure in the strategic review and planning session soon to be held by President Johnson in connection with a return here for consultation of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge is due back May 9. It will be his first trip here in about nine months, though he conferred with Johnson and other administration leaders in Honolulu last February.

U.S. military strength in South Viet Nam now stands at about 250,000 men, with South Vietnamese forces at about 700,000, including irregulars and police.

The tentatively scheduled buildup of U.S. forces, subject to periodic decision by President Johnson as specific reinforcement requests arrive from Saigon, will put the total at 400,000 or more by the end of the year.

One result of the buildup will be to increase the number of combat battalions as compared with supply and base-protection forces, greatly enlarging the search and destroy capacity of U.S. forces.

Boy's Science Paper Stumps Judging Panel

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — A 17-year-old high school junior has presented a paper on four years of cancer research on animals to the Montreal Medical Society.

Paul H. Bolduc Jr., who works in a home laboratory with equipment valued at $10,000, began collecting rats and guinea pigs while still a seventh grader.

He is a nephew of Dr. Roger A. Cote of Peabody, Mass., chief of laboratory services at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Boston.

So far, Bolduc has not been awarded a science prize in his own Bishop Bradley High School.

"The judges said they couldn't evaluate his project because they didn't know enough about his subject to understand what he was talking about," says the school principal.

Huge Viet Cong Supply Center Is Found by U.S.

RACH BENG GO RIVER, South Viet Nam (AP) — American troops today were destroying hundreds of tons of Viet Cong supplies found in a complex of warehouses at the heart of a vast network of jungle supply lines.

Hacking into jungles and digging through tunnels along the Cambodian border just 70 miles from Saigon, troops of the 1st Infantry Division discovered at least 30 large caches of rice, salt, cooking oil and clothing.

The supply camp was a vital stop on what is commonly called the Ho Chi Minh Trail. But here the trail is an international waterway — the Rach Beng Go River.

The river winds 20 miles through C one, a dense jungle dominated for decades by the Viet Cong, and forms the border between Cambodia and South Viet Nam.

It connects with several waterways that lead north and west into Cambodia and south into Viet Nam's Mekong Delta.

Last Sunday the entire field force of the 1st Division, joined by a Vietnamese division, launched a giant operation named Birmingham to destroy Viet Cong supply and communication lanes in the area.

Late Tuesday a platoon came to a clearing where the trees had been chopped down. Boards made from the timber were in stacks.

Small patrols fanned out, and each found trails that converged at a point alongside the Rach Beng Go River.

Suddenly the men came on a large tin-roofed storage hut. It held about 900 sacks of commercially bagged, polished rice. Each sack weighed 220 pounds.

Many of them were stenciled with the names of shipping firms in Formosa, Penang, Malaysia and Singapore. Others were U.S. aid sacks. At one point a day, this cache alone would feed 2,000 enemy troops for 100 days.

American patrols quickly moved down the river banks. One squad leader reported another 100 tons of rice loose in bins. Another found 50 tons of rock salt. Another found bundles of plastic material for ponchos, stacked 10 feet high and filling a warehouse the size of a large truck.

Sheets of tin were stacked six feet high. There were hundreds (Continued on Page 2)

$489 Million To Be Added

Health, Education Funds Fattened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee blasted a big hole in President Johnson's 1967 budget plans today by recommending huge increases in financing of health and education programs.

It added an unrequested $276,413,000 to the $16,066,129,500 sought by the President in new funds for the Labor Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for the fiscal year starting July 1.

In a formal report accompanying the money bill, which the House will consider next week, the committee criticized the administration for failing "to make proper allowance for the needs of" existing health programs. The House is expected to go along, as usual, with the committee's recommendations.

It is the second time in a week that the powerful committee refused to follow the President's fiscal leadership. Last week it added $28 million in unsought money to the annual Agriculture Department bill that the House approved unchanged Tuesday.

Erie Lakeside Refugees Stream Back to Homes

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Thousands of refugees streamed back today to lakeside homes flooded Wednesday by gale force winds which swept Lake Erie waters over the shore.

Up to two or three feet of water remained trapped behind protective dikes in some areas and many homes remained without electric or gas service, shut off by utility companies as a precaution in flooded sections.

Damage ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars along a 60-mile section of lakeshore stretching from near Detroit to 40 miles east of Toledo. Up to 7,500 persons were evacuated from shore areas during the flooding.

Showers and thunderstorms drenched the Toledo area today creating problems for authorities trying to pump floodwater out of areas where it was trapped by dikes built to keep Lake Erie waters out of low areas. Once the water was smashed through or over the floodwalls by the 40 to 50 m.p.h. winds it had no way to run out.

Winds died overnight to about six miles an hour and shifted to the southeast. It was a sub-born and fierce wind from the northeast which caused the flooding, in effect reversing the flow of Lake Erie and shoving its waters onto beaches along the southwest shore of the lake.

Meanwhile, perhaps 8,000 people all told — up to 6,000 in the Monroe area and 1,500 in Lucas County (Toledo) — had been evacuated. Some waited overlong and had to depart by rowboat and amphibious vehicles.

No fatalities, nor missing persons, were reported.

Gun Wound
Is Treated
At Hospital

Doyle Disbennett, Columbus, was admitted to Berger Hospital Wednesday for treatment of an accidental gunshot wound.

Disbennett told Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff George Linder he was carrying the gun, a .22 caliber revolver, in a holster.

It accidentally discharged when he attempted to remove it.

The bullet struck his left leg and lodged in his ankle.

The accident occurred on a Hocking County farm where Disbennett was hunting mushrooms. He was brought to Berger by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Sara Disbennett.

$489 Million

(Continued from Page 1) In the meanwhile, Sen. Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen challenged President Johnson today to act — and not just talk — about the $3 billion the President fears Congress is going to boost his budget.

Johnson said at a White House ceremony Wednesday that the way things are going "it looks like they may up the budget $3 billion this year" over the $113 billion spending budget he recommended for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

If that happens, Dirksen said in an interview, it will be the fault of Democrats in Congress who owe political allegiance to the President.

"The Republicans are trying to hold spending down to prevent a tax increase," Dirksen said. "I would respectfully suggest that the President could be of help in this if he would direct a request to his party leaders to resist the increases he is complaining about. Thus far there has been no such request."

An influential Democrat who didn't want to be quoted by name said there isn't likely to be one, either.

"The President picked the favorite items on the Christmas tree when he made his budget cuts," this Democrat said. "From the background of 30 years around here he knew exactly which items are most popular and those are the ones he picked to reduce."

"He's jockeying the Republicans into voting against a lot of things the people back home want and then he's handing these programs to the people as a present from the Democrats."

Idle Pay Trust Fund
Earnings Reported

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Unemployment Trust Fund earned more than $32 million in interest during the quarter ended March 31, State Treasurer John D. Herbert reported today.

He said the balance in the fund as of March 31 amounted to $364,147.62.

Huge . . .

Not a shot was fired. There was no sign of life.

A woman's cloth bag was discovered along a jungle trail. Together with love letters were bank notes from North Viet Nam, South Viet Nam and Cambodia.

An intelligence officer picked out a piece of paper. It said: "Received for rice — 224,000 piasters," equivalent on the official South Vietnamese exchange to a little more than $3,000. The receipt apparently was for a truckload of rice.

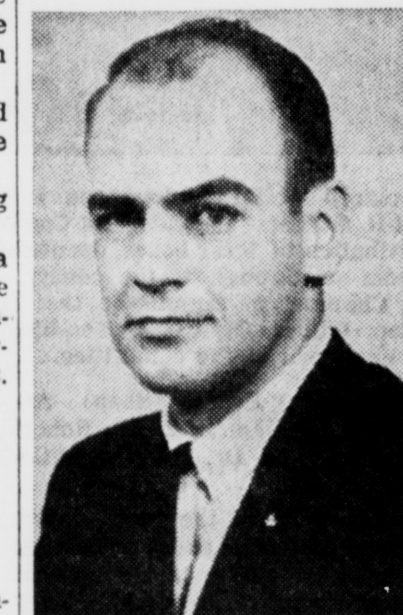

Reports continued to come in of more funds. Alpha Company alone accounted for more than 350 tons of goods.

Division command decided it was too big a job to carry the goods out and it was too dangerous to have million dollar cargo helicopters brought in so close to the border, across which enemy machine gunners could lie in wait. The goods had to be destroyed.

Youths Stage 'Beat Mass'
In Roman Catholic Chapel

ROME (AP) — Three mop-haired youth combos banged out a "beat mass" in a Roman Catholic chapel Wednesday night. Listeners couldn't agree whether it was a howling success or a holy mess.

A crowd of 500, including scores of priests, jammed into the oratory of St. Philip Neri. They stomped their feet and bobbed their heads to the rhythm of the electric guitars, drums, organ and singers.

Another 1,000 outside beat on the door trying to get in. Police reinforcements had to squeeze into the crowded courtyard to keep order.

A group of Oratorian Fathers, whose religious order specializes in youth work, sponsored the program.

The 17 young musicians were lined up before a battery of microphones to perform a nine-part mass written by composer Marcello Giobini, with words adapted by an editor of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, the Rev. Carlo Gasbarri. There was no religious celebration of the mass.

The Rev. Sinaldo Sinaldi, a Dominican priest, opened the concert with this explanation:

"In a hard and merciless era like ours, a profane music can be useful in expressing religious sentiments — although I want to assure you that the promoters of this enterprise have absolutely no intention of putting light music into the church's official cult, that is, its worship."

The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero commented: "Never before has there ever been seen such a crowd, unshaking punches and kicks, assaulting a barred door, just to be able to assist at a mass."

McIlwain Is Endorsed

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton County Democratic Party endorsed State Rep. Harry McIlwain of Cincinnati for the party's gubernatorial nomination, chairman Vincent Beckman said Wednesday night.

Jeeps with National Guard drivers accompanied by sheriffs' officers and other police patrolled stricken sections against looting.

The Red Cross and Civil Defense pitched in with assorted assistance in the worst Lake Erie flooding since 1952.

The floods commenced Wednesday morning when waves up to 10 feet smashed over protective walls along the coast.

At Luna Pier, Mich., about 400 people were moved out of 400 homes as water swept in up to three feet deep, Monroe Civil Defense Director Robert Guildersleeve said.

The Point Place section of Toledo, hit by one of the disastrous Palm Sunday 1965 tornadoes, got up to four feet of water and the flood cut off land access to Lost Peninsula, a fragment of Michigan adjoining Toledo.

Electric power and gas were shut off in these areas and there was some danger of fire or explosion from water seeping into appliances not turned off by fleeing occupants.

At Port Clinton, 35 miles east of here, there was high water on Ohio 2, a main highway, and breakers pounded boat docks, smashing one.

In Canada, 100 homes were flooded and 45 persons evacuated at Wheatley while 60 people were removed around Leamington.

Steady rains accompanied the sustained 45-55 mile per hour winds most of the time.

Not a shot was fired. There was no sign of life.

A woman's cloth bag was discovered along a jungle trail. Together with love letters were bank notes from North Viet Nam, South Viet Nam and Cambodia. An intelligence officer picked out a piece of paper. It said: "Received for rice — 224,000 piasters," equivalent on the official South Vietnamese exchange to a little more than $3,000. The receipt apparently was for a truckload of rice.

Reports continued to come in of more finds. Alpha Company alone accounted for more than 350 tons of goods.

Division command decided it was too big a job to carry the goods out and it was too dangerous to have million dollar cargo helicopters brought in so close to the border, across which enemy machine gunners could lie in wait. The goods had to be destroyed.

Youths Stage 'Beat Mass' In Roman Catholic Chapel

ROME (AP) — Three mohair-haired youth combos banged out a "beat mass" in a Roman Catholic chapel Wednesday night. Listeners couldn't agree whether it was a howling success or a holy mess.

A crowd of 500, including scores of priests, jammed into the oratory of St. Philip Neri. They stomped their feet and bobbed their heads to the rhythm of the electric guitars, drums, organ and singers.

Another 1,000 outside beat on the door trying to get in. Police reinforcements had to squeeze into the crowded courtyard to keep order.

A group of Oratorian Fathers, whose religious order specializes in youth work, sponsored the program.

The 17 young musicians were lined up before a battery of microphones to perform a nine-part mass written by composer Marcello Giobini, with words adapted by an editor of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, the Rev. Carlo Gasbarri. There was no religious celebration of the mass.

The Rev. Sinaldo Sinaldi, a Dominican priest, opened the concert with this explanation:

"In a hard and merciless era like ours, a profane music can be useful in expressing religious sentiments — although I want to assure you that the promoters of this enterprise have absolutely no intention of putting light music into the church's official cult, that is, its worship."

The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero commented: "Never before has there ever been seen such a crowd, unslashing punches and kicks, assaulting a barred door, just to be able to assist at a mass."

State's Rentals Seen 'Bargain'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state of Ohio spends more than $1 million a year to rent office quarters in Columbus. But this may be a pretty good bargain.

At least, state officials say they will await the results of an extensive study before planning any state office building or consolidations of the 54 rented locations scattered through the city.

State Public Works Director Alfred C. Glenow said the New York consultant firm of Becker and Becker is about to begin the study which will be completed by the end of the year.

He said the study will encompass state-owned facilities as well as what the state rents in the capital and around the state. The state spends about $2 million a year to rent office quarters in other cities.

"We expect it to include everything so we can get recommendations for more efficiency all along the line," Glenow said.

An Associated Press survey of state officials, legislators, construction people, researchers, and others found no doubt that a central office building could be built, but some question whether it would be feasible to build one huge new building to house the state operations now scattered in rental quarters.

It would make a building towering far above the state's three existing buildings just to equal the space the state now rents. Providing space for expansion would add to the size—and cost—of any new state office building.

Some question whether the state would build new office space when quarters are available at favorable rents.

On researcher who had reservations said the state enjoys a favorable rent climate in the Columbus area. "There is a lot of available space," he said.

He noted that state rentals on about 445,000 square feet of floor space in Columbus average about $2.4 a square foot and added: "That doesn't sound too bad, considering cost of new construction."

Individual rentals range from 30 cents a square foot the Tax Department pays for 3,000 feet of storage space to $4.12 a foot for Board of Regents quarters in the new skyscraper the Teachers' Retirement System built.

Anthony Drabek, an official of the Columbus Builders' Exchange which represents Columbus area building contractors, said it would be possible to combine offices now rented in a structure of perhaps 30 floors. "But it would be impossible to estimate the cost until you know what materials you are going to use, how many stories you want both above and below ground, how many windows, and many other things," Drabek said.

Based on the latest state construction—the $6 million Highway Department and the $5 million Bureau of Unemployment Compensation building—facilities deemed suitable for state occupancy cost about $24 a square foot.

At that rate, a structure with the 445,000 square feet needed would cost about $10.6 million. But this would not include the property which might add $1 million or more for a downtown site near the statehouse.

The state already owned the land for the BUC and highway buildings which flank the older Ohio Departments Building beside the Scioto River a block from the statehouse.

In addition to the overcrowding of state departments, members of the Ohio Legislature also are looking into the possibility of more office space. An Associated Press survey several months ago showed Ohio legislators working in far less space than their counterparts in other states of comparable size.

The General Assembly authorized the Legislative Service Commission to study legislators' needs and report to the 1967 session. Sen. Charles J. Carny, D - Mahoning, said the study was going well and added: "We are going to have some pretty convincing facts."

In addition to rented quarters, some state offices and departments are housed in old state-owned buildings described by one official as "dilapidated fire traps that should have been torn down years ago."

Among them are the old deaf and blind schools where all or parts of the Welfare, Health, and Industrial Relations Departments are housed.

There has been considerable talk about new quarters for the Health Department and reports that a downtown site is under consideration. But William O. French, head of property services in the Public Works Department, said all plans are being held in abeyance pending the consultants' study.

"We want a better idea of what we need overall," he said. Replacing these older buildings with new office space would greatly increase the size needed for any new central office building.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson could see what was coming in big doses when earlier this year he ordered the bombing of North Viet Nam resumed and decided to step up the war. What was coming was criticism.

In fact, it was already there and had been for months. But the critics of his Viet Nam policy, already plentiful and vocal, seized upon his decisions this year for fresh outbursts. Johnson had been around long enough to know they would.

He also had been around long enough to know that unless he met this criticism head-on himself it would get worse and that more than just answering the counties was involved.

In the first place, the more the criticism and the longer it went unanswered, the more confused Americans would become about the war, which meant a division of opinion in this country.

Second overseas people, particularly the Communists, would be aware of divided American thinking and, in the case of the Communists, there was the chance they might interpret the division as a weakening of the will to win.

The divided opinion took many forms: U.S. forces should stay in Viet Nam, they should get out; the bombing should be stopped, it should be intensified; the Americans should retire to coastal bases, and they should do the opposite.

If Johnson had gone on national television for one hour he could have explained his policy, why he thought it necessary to fight the war, what it meant to the United States, to Viet Nam, to Southeast Asia, to the Communists.

Once he did this, of course, he would have been a rallying point and a prime target — a rallying point for all those who agreed with him or thought he should be supported; a target for those who disagreed.

In the weeks that followed his words would have been flung back at him by his critics and if events took a sour turn, as they did with the revolt of the Bud-

The result is that the American people, and people overseas, have to try to put the pieces together which is quite different from the kind of comprehensive picture they might have had if Johnson did the explaining.

By staying in the background Johnson has saved himself from expanded personal attacks but that doesn't necessarily make his comparative silence the wiser policy.

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—When Jimmy Wright raised the flag at City Building Tuesday he did not notice it was upside down. And that's where all the confusion started. Several people called police who passed the word on through channels. That took time and finally Patrolman Cecil Short went out, took the flag down and raised it again, right side up.

About the same time, Wright finally got the word from his boss. He went out, lowered the flag, turned it around and raised it again.

Once more, telephone calls started pouring in to police. Short went out again and changed the flag around. This time it stayed.

In the weeks that followed his words would have been flung back at him by his critics and if events took a sour turn, as they did with the revolt of the Buddhists, some of his words might have been turned against him.

In short, for Johnson to have laid it on the line himself on television in a detailed and lengthy explanation would have been to stick his neck out.

He has let his lieutenants — like Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and others — do the explaining about American policy and intentions.

The only trouble about such explanations is this:

1. They turn into a patch quilt, with Humphrey throwing in something new, Rusk adding something later, someone else contributing a bit some other time.

2. The explanations, particularly Rusk's, with all their diplomatic phrasing — like saying this country could live with a "nonaligned" South Viet Nam — are sometimes far from clear.

down. And that's where all the confusion started.

Several people called police who passed the word on through channels. That took time and finally Patrolman Cecil Short went out, took the flag down and raised it again, right side up.

About the same time, Wright finally got the word from his boss. He went out, lowered the flag, turned it around and raised it again.

Once more, telephone calls started pouring in to police. Short went out again and changed the flag around. This time it stayed.

Grand Opportunity

I don't know anything about the motives of Mrs. Johnnie Tillman of the Watts district of Los Angeles, who was one of the crusading "citizens against poverty" who heckled Sargent Shriver the other day in Washington. But I fear she was all too accurate when she said that "when all this poverty money is spent, the rich man is going to be richer and I'm still going to be receiving a welfare check."

The reason poverty must remain after all the poverty money is spent is that government, by itself, is a mighty poor job maker. It can put kids into Head Start programs (and I'm all for it), it can operate Job Corps centers, it can distribute relief, and it can name a few favored individuals to government posts. But if, at the end, there are no new businesses started by private enterprisers there will be nothing for the newly educated to do. (Parenthetically, it should be observed that existing businesses have always been able to train their own labor forces to the extent that training is needed.) Without expansion of the private economy, a government program winds up by throwing an expectant semi-intelligentsia on the beach to clamor for a socialism that has never yet solved productive problems anywhere.

What to do about it all? Since liberals have only managed to come up with dead-end projects, the conservatives of the nation are presented with a grand opportunity if only they can cease being negative for a change. A Negro friend of mine, who is critical of the current poverty programs, was talking the other day about the chances that New York State's Governor Nelson Rockefeller and New York City's Mayor John Lindsay, both of them Republicans, are mulling. He mentioned John Lindsay's new approach to slum rehabilitation, which gives promise of being technically brilliant but does nothing in particular to expand the job market that will enable people to pay the rent in the rehabilitated dwellings. Lindsay's idea is to hire a progressive builder, the T. Y. Lin Associates, to cut holes in the roofs of ancient tenements and lower concrete boxes containing whole kitchens and bathrooms into the stripped interiors. But this "instant rehabilitation" must be paid for out of tax-supported urban redevelopment, and it is doubtful that it will put a single Negro slum dweller to work. So where are we at the end of it all?

My Negro friend thinks he has a better proposition. He would have the city lease to a private non-profit corporation some of the three thousand slum buildings that it has acquired because of tax payment defaults. The non-profit corporation would put presently unemployed Negroes to work at renovating the buildings. It would repay itself for the renovation job out of rents ($60 a month for five-room apartments), and then, after the break-even point on its outlay had been reached, it would be in a position to sell the buildings at a profit. This is a very attractive proposition, and it is well-known that stuttering suddenly stops, if only temporarily, when the stutterer sings and thus changes his breathing rhythm.

Stuttering has a definite psychological origin and carries with it severe additional emotional overtones.

This leads to the second part of your question about the cure for stuttering. Since stuttering is a sign of a deep-seated emotional problem, it must be studied from the psychological point of view.

Hypnosis is a well-recognized form of psychological treatment. Many cases of stuttering and stammering have been benefited by hypnosis, performed only by psychologists expertly trained in its delicate techniques.

Hypnosis must not be considered as a short-cut to a rapid cure.

Hypnosis as a part of the total process of psychotherapy may give the stutterer a better hope for improvement.

Is it dangerous for a person with a duodenal ulcer to travel to Europe in a jet airplane?

Mrs. J. N. Pennsylvania Dear Mrs. N.: People with duodenal ulcers are not subjected to any special bodily stress during a flight in a jet plane.

Nevertheless, it is wise to consult your own physician before going to a foreign land. He may suggest medication to allay your anxiety during the flight.

Your doctor may also have the names of colleagues whom you might consult if your ulcer "kicks up."

Serious problems during the delivery of a child can be avoided if every pregnant woman consults a doctor early in pregnancy. The birth of a healthy, normal child depends on it.

return the buildings to the city. No taxes would be needed to carry through with the project. But in the meantime Negroes would have been trained in the building trades (now mostly closed to all save lily-white apprentices), and these new carpenters and plasterers and plumbers could go on rehabilitating the next round of slum property. The bootstrap effect would be greater than anything now on Sargent Shriver's horizon.

I asked my friend why he had brought Governor Rockefeller into the conversation as a politician who is missing an opportunity. His reply was that Nelson Rockefeller had forgotten a lot of things that were ABC to his capitalist grandfather. Nelson Rockefeller, he said, was applying "plantation psychology" to the Negro problem. "He begins by hiring Jackie Robinson as a straw boss," he said, "and he goes on thinking in terms of foundation charity. This doesn't help crack the problem. Now, if Nelson Rockefeller would forget the political approach and set up a free enterprise corporation to support Negro businesses and voluntary non-profit undertakings, he'd not only get his money back but he'd make enough friends to get himself elected President."

What my Negro friend was obviously leading up to is the possibility of a Rockefeller-to-Lindsay parlay making use of private enterprise mechanisms to do something that government is not really set up to do. If Rockefeller and Lindsay won't pick the idea up, maybe there are some constructive conservatives who will.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

FROM MONTE CARLO comes the story of a marquise who played hostess to a party of twenty in her villa on the Riviera. Something must have been wrong with the fish, because all the guests became violently ill at the same time. Four, as a matter of fact, expired on the spot. The compassionate marquise who, fortunately for herself, never ate fish, declared, "Four dead, eh? It's a sign!" and rushed off to the Casino to bet a bundle on Number Four at the roulette table. Number Five came up. Bitterly disappointed, she wended her way back to her villa, where she promptly dropped dead of heart failure. She herself was the fifth to die there that evening. This was something, obviously, that the dear lady hadn't reckoned on!

Two dilapidated bums sat idly in the sun in Central Park. "You know why I'm here?" demanded one moodily. "I'm a failure because I never took advice from anybody." "I'm as badly off as you are," his bench-mate reminded him. "I took advice from EVERYBODY!"

Off-quoted observation by Mark Hellinger: "Nobody likes a yes-man but did you ever notice how few no-men are working?"

LAFF-A-DAY

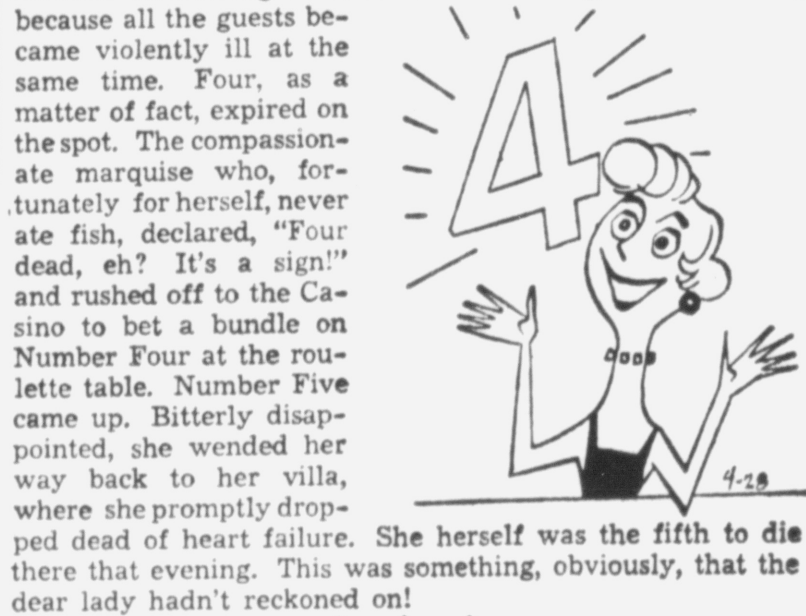

"Oh, knock it off. You've already been sold!"

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

FROM MONTE CARLO comes the story of a marquise who played hostess to a party of twenty in her villa on the Riviera. Something must have been wrong with the fish, because all the guests became violently ill at the same time. Four, as a matter of fact, expired on the spot. The compassionate marquise who, fortunately for herself, never ate fish, declared, "Four dead, eh? It's a sign!" and rushed off to the Casino to bet a bundle on Number Four at the roulette table. Number Five came up. Bitterly disappointed, she wended her way back to her villa, where she promptly dropped dead of heart failure. She herself was the fifth to die there that evening. This was something, obviously, that the dear lady hadn't reckoned on!

Two dilapidated bums sat idly in the sun in Central Park. "You know why I'm here?" demanded one moodily. "I'm a failure because I never took advice from anybody." "I'm as badly off as you are," his bench-mate reminded him. "I took advice from EVERYBODY!"

Off-quoted observation by Mark Hellinger: "Nobody likes a yes-man but did you ever notice how few no-men are working?"

Rail Traffic May Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland may get an increase in rail traffic up to one third the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads, their spokesmen say.

The officials made the estimate Wednesday in a statement evaluating effects of the consolidation on Ohio points along the newly combined line.

A NYC official said in Cleveland that much of the traffic now going over the Pennsylvania between the New York and St. Louis-Chicago now can be handled on NYC tracks because the water level route through Cleveland would cut costs.

The Cleveland NYC spokesman said it also is expected that substantial reconstruction will be undertaken at the Collinwood Yard just east of Cleveland. Some employees at Collinwood probably will be transferred to other locations, he added.

Pennsylvania spokesmen in Chicago said there may be some additions to facilities in Columbus.

At Heath in Licking County, a connection with the Baltimore & Ohio will be required to the New York Central's tracks to provide a route for trains from Columbus to the Charleston-Dickinson area.

Another connection will be needed between the Norfolk & Western Sandusky branch siding and the NYC to Clintonville where it joins the main line to provide the route for Columbus-Cleveland traffic to and from Columbus Yard B, Grogan, and the N&W Pennor yard.

Still another connection at London in Madison County from the NYC's Cincinnati-Springfield Dayton line to the Pennsylvania's Miami main line is planned to provide routes to yards in Columbus.

For Toledo, the Stanley yards of the NYC will be principal operations point with the outyard converted into a supporting operation for nearby industry.

For the railroad center of Crestline-Galion, Pennsylvania spokesmen said concentration of operations at the Pennsylvania facilities in Crestline will be the principal effect of the merger.

Taft Tries Again For Congress

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Robert Taft Jr., defeated two years ago when he tried to follow his famous father into the U.S. Senate, is campaigning to win back a seat in the House.

The son of the late "Mr. Republican" is a candidate in the May 3 Primary for the GOP congressional nomination in the 1st District.

Taft, 49, had served only one term when he gave up the House seat to run against Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young, and lost in one of the major upsets of the 1964 election.

The 1st District seat was captured by a Democrat, Rep. John J. Gilligan, who is unopposed for renomination.

A fellow Cincinnati attorney, William E. Flax, has challenged Taft in the Republican primary. But Flax, a political novice, is given little chance of winning.

Taft has ignored his Republican opponent to attack Gilligan and the national Democratic administration on domestic issues, particularly the rising cost of living. The Viet Nam War hasn't figured in the campaign.

Two other well known Republicans also have opposition in the primary.

For the first time in a decade, Rep. William M. McCulloch is having to run for renomination in the 4th District. James M. Carpenter, Lima businessman, is his opponent.

And in the 7th District, Clarence J. Brown Jr., serving out the term of his father, is opposed by T. Quinn Licklider of Springfield.

Brown, an Urbana newspaper publisher and radio station owner, defeated Licklider and several others last fall in a special election called after his father died.

Most Republicans who hold state offices are unopposed. An exception is Gov. James A. Rhodes, opposed again by William L. White, 74, a Mount Vernon businessman who lost to Rhodes four years ago by 460,000 votes. Rhodes has ignored White's campaign.

Two young legislators are contending for the Democratic nomination to run against Rhodes in the November general election. They are Sen. Frazier Reams Jr., 36, a Toledo attorney and radio station executive, and Rep. Harry H. McIlwain, 43, a Cincinnati lawyer.

Congressman-at-large Robert E. Sweeney and former Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy, Cuyahoga County recorder, are contesting for the right to run against GOP Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe.

James D. Nolan public relations man whose court suit led to reapportionment of the Ohio Legislature, and James H. Bell, first Negro candidate for statewide office in 30 years, seek the nomination to go against veteran GOP Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

With most campaigns in low key, the secretary of state predicts a primary vote of 1.3 million, about 25,000 under the 1962 total.

LBJ Aide Due To Inherit Tough Job in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After working for Lyndon B. Johnson, Jack Valenti may consider his new job as movie czar a vacation. But he'll find plenty of work to do.

The special assistant to President Johnson was elected as the $100,000-a-year president of the Motion Picture Producers Association this week. He'll take over an office that is somewhat in disarray, having been unfilled since the death of Eric Johnston in 1963.

Valenti, whose headquarters will be in New York, will also face a formidable set of problems, the most serious ones concerning censorship.

The present situation harks back to why the job was created in the first place. In the 1920s, the bustling young film industry had no restraints. Some quick-buck producers purveyed nudity and blatant sex, much to the alarm of the nation's moralists.

The alarm became more general after a series of scandals involving important film names. The cry arose in pulpits and editorials against wicked Hollywood, and movie censor boards began to proliferate.

The worried film moguls banded together in the Motion Picture Producers Association and hired Will Hays as president. As President Warren G. Harding's postmaster general and political chieftain, Hays had important connections in Washington and all over the country.

"Hays' chief function was to hold down the censor boards," says a veteran producer. "He had the political know-how, and he was strong enough to force the producers to clean up their pictures and make the stars behave."

Through the Production Code, the Hays office maintained firm control of film content until 1945, when Hays retired. He was succeeded by Eric Johnston, the glad-handing, global-thinking former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"Johnston wasn't terribly concerned with film content," said an industry observer. "He spent little time in Hollywood and knew few of the movie makers. His job was largely international."

"He performed the important function of freeing money that was frozen in foreign countries during and after the war. This was money that the film companies desperately needed. Johnston found ways to get it to them, and he also helped expand the global market."

Johnston paid little attention to the moral revolution that took place in films during his tenancy. Franker films from abroad, shifting mores and the need to compete with television forced Hollywood to deal more realistically with sex.

Decisions by the Supreme Court helped the producers in their drive for freedom of the screen, at some protectors of public morals felt that movies have gone too far in depicting sex and restraints are needed. The classification of films has been proposed to protect children from licentious movies. Such a system has long been employed in England and other countries. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith has announced hearings on the matter.

"That will be Jack Valenti's first job: dealing with the censors and classifiers," commented an observer. "He'll have his hands full."

Underground A-Blast Eyed by Oil Experts

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An underground atomic blast that experts estimate would boost an oil company's gas production by as much as four trillion cubic feet is being studied.

R. McLean Stewart, chairman and chief executive officer of Austral Oil Co., an independent producing company based at Houston, said the firm has spent a substantial sum on drawing up a proposal concerning such mission to the Atomic Energy Commission.

Pickaway County Spends $341,288 for Liquor

According to the report, this is a per capita expenditure of $9.76 for county residents.

The per capita outlay for the entire state was placed at $27.02.

LBJ Aide Due To Inherit Tough Job in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After working for Lyndon B. Johnson, Jack Valenti may consider his new job as movie czar a vacation. But he'll find plenty of work to do.

The special assistant to President Johnson was elected as the $100,000-a-year president of the Motion Picture Producers Association this week. He'll take over an office that is somewhat in disarray, having been unfilled since the death of Eric Johnston in 1963.

Valenti, whose headquarters will be in New York, will also face a formidable set of problems, the most serious ones concerning censorship.

The present situation harks back to why the job was created in the first place. In the 1920s, the bustling young film industry had no restraints. Some quick-buck producers purveyed nudgy and blatant sex, much to the alarm of the nation's moralists.

The alarm became more general after a series of scandals involving immoral film names. The cry arose in pulpits and editorials against wicked Hollywood, and movie censor boards began to proliferate.

The worried film moguls banded together in the Motion Picture Producers Association and hired Will Hays as president. As President Warren G. Harding's postmaster general and political chieftain, Hays had important connections in Washington and all over the country.

"Hays' chief function was to hold down the censor boards," says a veteran producer. "He had the political know-how, and he was strong enough to force the producers to clean up their pictures and make the stars behave."

Through the Production Code, the Hays office maintained firm control of film content until 1945, when Hays retired. He was succeeded by Eric Johnston, the glad-handing, global-thinking former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Johnston wasn't terribly concerned with film content," said an industry observer. "He spent little time in Hollywood and knew few of the movie makers. His job was largely international."

"He performed the important function of freeing money that was frozen in foreign countries during and after the war. This was money that the film companies desperately needed. Johnston found ways to get it to them, and he also helped expand the global market."

Johnston paid little attention to the moral revolution that took place in films during his tenancy. Franker films from abroad, shifting mores and the need to compete with television forced Hollywood to deal more realistically with sex.

Decisions by the Supreme Court helped the producers in their drive for freedom of the screen, at some protectors of public morals felt that movies have gone too far in depicting sex and restraints are needed.

The classification of films has been proposed to protect children from licentious movies. Such a system has long been employed in England and other countries. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith has announced hearings on the matter.

"That will be Jack Valenti's first job: dealing with the censors and classifiers," commented an observer. "He'll have his hands full."

Underground A-Blast

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An underground atomic blast that experts estimate would boost an oil company's gas production by as much as four trillion cubic feet is being studied.

R. McLean Stewart, chairman and chief executive officer of Austral Oil Co., an independent producing company based at Houston, said the firm has spent a substantial sum on drawing up a proposal concerning such mission to the Atomic Energy Commission.

According to the report, this is a per capita expenditure of $9.76 for county residents.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

'See That Guy? - He's My Husband'

DEAR ABBY: I am a cocktail waitress with a small problem. I am not married, but am not interested in dating because I have a boy friend overseas I am trying to be true to. Well, you know how some men are. Some of them just won't take no for an answer. I don't like to get nasty about it, but it's pretty hard to turn them down without telling them off. Besides, it's rough on a girl's tips when she has to put a guy in his place. Any suggestions?

SAVING MYSELF
DEAR SAVING: Just point out the huskiest bartender in the place and tell the wolves that HE'S your husband.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is to be married soon. It will be a large wedding in a fairly large church. Here is the problem: We really have no family. I was an only child. My mother was an orphan. My husband is from a distant part of the country, from a poor family. What is left of his family cannot attend the wedding. We do not have many friends and our side of the church will look very empty.

We are terribly embarrassed and there will be only a handful on our side and the bride's family and friends will number nearly 200. We're red-faced and sick about it, and fear we will be laughed at. I don't know what you can do, but thought I'd try for an answer. Thank you.

RED-FACED
DEAR RED-FACED: You have no reason to be embarrassed. Your family is small and you are not the type of people to invite casual acquaintances to your son's wedding, for which you should be commended. Since the bride's people are paying for it I am willing to bet you will not be laughed at.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago my sister gave us a washing machine that had been given

Weekly Food Review

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices in the nation's food markets this week are about as unpredictable as the weather.

And shoppers who are basing some hope of lower food bills this summer on the weather are holding their breath.

A cold snap in the Pacific Northwest dropped temperatures to well below freezing in some areas, causing some damage to the pea crop and to sweet cherries, apricots, plums and early apples. Plums were badly hurt in some Oregon areas. The cold slowed the Northwest asparagus harvest.

Freezes also have damaged the sweet cherries in Michigan. The Florida citrus crop is coming along fine, but needs rain. So does the whole Northeast — dried by a five-year drought.

Tornadoes ripped through the Tampa, Lakeland and the Winter Haven areas of Florida earlier this month, but caused little damage to the fruit.

In Wisconsin, it has been too wet and too cool, slowing pea planting.

A big item in the mounting food bills for months has been meat.

Pork played a major role. Prices reached high levels during the winter when production was down.

As consumers switched to other meats, the prices of the substitutes rose, too. Now pork marketings are near their usual spring peak, and prices have declined.

4,000 Viet City Aides Are Grabbed

SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists have killed or abducted more than 4,000 Vietnamese government officials in the past two years, authorities said Wednesday.

Red agents have been striking mainly at the countryside, decimating local leadership and paralyzing administration.

"Many villages today are virtually depopulated of their natural leaders," one official report said. "Their loss to Viet Nam is inestimable and will take a generation or more to replace."

The total of officials killed or abducted from the start of 1964 is 4,338.

Incomplete estimates of the non-official victims of Viet Cong terror in 1965 are 11,086 persons—killed, wounded or kidnapped.

According to captured Viet Cong directives, three-man "special activities cells" have been instructed to strike particularly at officials.

The effort to disrupt organized administrative life of rural Viet Nam was accompanied by the growth of urban terror.

Terrorist acts in the Saigon-Cholon metropolitan area grew from 14 in 1962 to 103 in 1965. The capital was struck by more than 60 Viet Cong attacks so far this year.

Vietnamese and American officials appear to be more preoccupied with the trouble in the countryside, apparently feeling that the outcome of the war may be decided there.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Lamp At Midnight" was one of those well-intentioned period pieces of which NBC's "Hall of Fame" series is so fond. As historical dramas are wont to do, it zipped along Wednesday night with the

4,000 Viet City Aides Are Grabbed

SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists have killed or abducted more than 4,000 Vietnamese government officials in the past two years, authorities said Wednesday.

Red agents have been striking mainly at the countryside, decimating local leadership and paralyzing administration.

"Many villages today are virtually depopulated of their natural leaders," one official reported. "Their loss to Viet Nam is inestimable and will take a generation or more to replace."

The total of officials killed or abducted from the start of 1964 is 4,338.

Incomplete estimates of the non-official victims of Viet Cong terror in 1965 are 11,086 persons—killed, wounded or kidnapped.

According to captured Viet Cong directives, three-man "special activities cells" have been instructed to strike particularly at officials.

The effort to disrupt organized administrative life of rural Viet Nam was accompanied by the growth of urban terror.

Terrorist acts in the Saigon-Cholon metropolitan area grew from 14 in 1962 to 103 in 1965. The capital was struck by more than 60 Viet Cong attacks so far this year.

Vietnamese and American officials appear to be more preoccupied with the trouble in the countryside, apparently feeling that the outcome of the war may be decided there.

speed of an arctic glacier.

It was full of stately trappings and ornate, oratorical prose but often during important scenes, one had a distinct impression that the actors were having a lot more fun than the spectators.

There was Melvyn Douglas, playing Old Galileo, a 16th century scientist and astronomer from the middle of so much makeup that he looked something like the cowardly lion of "The Wizard of Oz." David Wayne, who usually plays a jaunty leprechaun type of fellow, was cast as a cruel fanatic priest determined to bring Galileo to his knees if not the stake for heresy.

The story had Galileo making a telescope lens so strong it reinforced his belief in the Copernican theory that the earth revolves around the sun. This brought him, a devout Christian, into headlong conflict with his church's doctrine that the earth is the center of the universe.

Galileo ultimately disavowed his theory during the Inquisition period, but for reasons not made to clear. But the basic message of the program apparently was that truth will out.

It was a handsome program with colorful costumes and lofty interiors. It was well produced and had a point of view. But it was also very long and without much surprise or excitement.

ABC's John Scali, narrating a news special Wednesday night called "Red China: Year Of The Gun?" hedged his answer to the program's big question. It is possible, he admitted, and mentioned what he called "disturbing signs" like the movement of Chinese army units into Viet Nam. But he also had Secretary of State Dean Rusk on the program, speaking of the danger of conflict but also noting that Red China's rulers are men of prudence and rationality.

Most enlightening part of the hour was statements from recent visitors to Red China, talking frankly about the improvement in the lot of average person in the years since the country became Communist. Scali emphasized that while life there is still lean and primitive by American standards, it represents progress over the poverty and exploitation of other years.

Film shown was largely the propaganda type — lots of shots of those massive, cheering gatherings of which Communists seem so fond, and lovely pastoral scenes filled with happy workers.

Recommended tonight: "The World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau," CBS, 7:30-8:30 EDT, beautifully filmed account of the experiment of six oceanauts living and working for a month in deep ocean.

Musicians Compete at Muskingum

On April 16, the state solo and ensemble contest was held at Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio.

Any solo or group who performed a composition from the difficult list, published by the Ohio Music Education Association, and received a I rating was eligible to compete in the state contest.

Robert Petty entered the girls' ensemble, boys' octet, and Lorna Poling, soprano solo. All Logan Elm entries received the "superior" rating.

Members of the girls' ensemble are: first soprano — Katie Wilson, Carol DeLong, and Lorna Poling; second soprano — Barbara McCain, Sandy Gifford and Janie Wright; alto — Judy Young, Debbie Ankrom, and Pam Leist.

Members of the boys' octet are: first tenor — Scott Wilson and Tom Smith; second tenor — Terry Ferrell and Charlie Rhodes; baritone — Danny Dahl and Mike Helwegen; bass — Terry Moss and Daryl Reichelderfer.

The next competition festival is the state contest for band and choir. Mr. Petty plans to take both groups.

LE Students Attend Meet

Saturday fourteen Logan Elm student librarians and their adviser attended the Ohio Student Librarians' Assn. meeting at Wilmington College.

The theme of the meeting was "The Library — Key to Unlimited Horizons." Some 600 student librarians from all over Ohio were present. The program was in charge of the student officers led by Tom Michaels, state president, of Canton.

Featured were the Wilmington Symphony Orchestra, Miss Carolyn Duell of Columbia Gas who used the subject, "It's The Fashion . . . Doll!" Campus tours, workshops and the election and installation of officers for next year were also held.

There was keen competition among the candidates for the various offices. Clever slogans, posters and handbills were everywhere.

Richard Massie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Massie, Route 1, and a junior at Logan Elm, was elected secretary for the coming year. We sincerely congratulate him and wish him success in his new duties. Dick conducted a hard campaign and was ably assisted by the school delegate, Mary Belle Kreisel and other student librarians.

Those who attended the conference were Bobby Collins, Brenda Fausnaugh, Lynn Fraunfelter, Nadine Hinton, Eddie Kreisel, Mary Belle Kreisel, Dick Massie, Nancy May, Valerie May, Sharon Noble, Diana Schaal, Cindy Valentine, Paula Weaver, Karen Wolford and their advisor, Miss Mildred Wertman.

Student Teachers At Teays Valley

By PATTI FRAZIER

Teays Valley High School has received eight student teachers from Ohio State University for the remainder of this term.

For those who are unfamiliar with the duties of a student teacher, one might say a student teacher is to education as an intern is to medicine. In other words, the student teachers get to practice teaching under the supervision of an experienced teacher. Each student teacher is responsible for at least one class and assists the cooperating teacher in another class.

Teays Valley's English department has three student teachers, Miss Iden, Mr. Brause and Miss Arno. Miss Iden is teaching senior English under the supervision of Mrs. Engle. She is a graduate of Newark High School and has an English major and an art minor from Ohio State.

Mr. Brause is teaching junior English under Mrs. Hawkins. Mr. Brause comes to TV with a wide variety of experiences. He is a graduate of East High School, received his BA in speech from OSU and his master's degree in speech at OSU. He has a minor in English. Mr. Brause has done some teaching at the college level and has been an active debate participant.

The third student teacher in the English department is Miss Arno. She is teaching speech under Miss Frazier. Miss Arno is a graduate of Worthington High School and has attended Iowa State University, Ohio University, and Ohio State University. She has a major in television speech and a minor in science. She is presently directing an educational television series for WOSU-TV.

James McCord, a native of Ashville, is doing his student teaching in American government under Miss Oesterle. McCord is a social studies major and is now completing his BA degree work at Ohio State. He plans to enter graduate school after graduation.

The science department received two student teachers.

Mr. Derbyshire, a comprehensive sciences major, is teaching under the supervision of Mr. Davis. Mr. Derbyshire is responsible for a freshman class of general science. He is a graduate of Edon High School in Edon, O. Besides teaching, Mr. Derbyshire is also interested in athletics and in coaching.

Mr. Snider is supervising the teachings of Mr. Cope. Mr. Cope is taking charge of one of Mr. Snider's chemistry classes. He has a chemistry major and a mathematics minor. He graduated from Salem Senior High School and has attended Ohio State since that time.

The Home Economics department has two student teachers. Miss Kaiser is teaching Mrs. Barrett's two sophomore home economics classes, one junior home economics class, and one senior home economics class. She graduated from Barnesville High School.

Mrs. Tootle has Miss Rudolph as her student teacher. Miss Rudolph is a graduate of Platt R. Spencer High School in Geneva, O. She is responsible for a freshman home economics class (those girls who are taking only one year of home ec) and the special education section.

All the student teachers are well trained and come to TV with varied and interesting experiences. Both the students and the faculty members benefit from student teachers with whom they work.

Musicians Compete at Muskingum

On April 16, the state solo and ensemble contest was held at Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio.

Any solo or group who performed a composition from the difficult list, published by the Ohio Music Education Association, and received a 1 rating was eligible to compete in the state contest.

Robert Petty entered the girls' ensemble, boys' octet, and Lorna Poling, soprano solo. All Logan Elm entries received the "superior" rating.

Members of the girls' ensemble are: first soprano — Katie Wilson, Carol DeLong, and Lorna Poling; second soprano — Barbara McCain, Sandy Gifford and Jamie Wright; alto — Judy Young, Debbie Ankrom, and Pam Leist.

Members of the boys' octet are: first tenor — Scott Wilson and Tom Smith; second tenor — Terry Ferrell and Charlie Rhodes; baritone — Danny Dahl and Mike Helwage; bass — Terry Moss and Daryl Reichelderfer.

The next competition festival is the state contest for band and choir. Mr. Petty plans to take both groups.

LE Students Attend Meet

Saturday fourteen Logan Elm student librarians and their adviser attended the Ohio Student Librarians' Assn. meeting at Wilmington College.

The theme of the meeting was "The Library — Key to Unlimited Horizons." Some 600 student librarians from all over Ohio were present. The program was in charge of the student officers led by Tom Michaels, state president, of Canton.

Featured were the Wilmington Symphony Orchestra, Miss Carolyn Duell of Columbia Gas who used the subject, "It's The Fashion . . . Doll!" Campus tours, workshops and the election and installation of officers for next year were also held.

There was keen competition among the candidates for the various offices. Clever slogans, posters and handbills were everywhere.

Richard Massie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Massie, Route 1, and a junior at Logan Elm, was elected secretary for the coming year. We sincerely congratulate him and wish him success in his new duties. Dick conducted a hard campaign and was ably assisted by the school delegate, Mary Belle Kreisel and other student librarians.

Those who attended the conference were Bobby Collins, Brenda Fausnaugh, Lynn Fraunfelder, Nadine Hinton, Eddie Kreisel, Mary Belle Kreisel, Dick Massie, Nancy May, Valerie May, Sharon Noble, Diana Schaal, Cindy Valentine, Paula Weaver, Karen Wolford and their advisor, Miss Mildred Wertman.

Violet Fancier At Convention

VIOLET FANCIER AND YOUNGEST MEMBER — Twelve-year-old Ruth Fuller (left), youngest member of NAVS is pictured here with Mrs. Loren Fogler of near Laurelville who consented to report to the convention highlight for the Herald Garden Page. Ruth Fuller lives in Largo, Fla. and has 80 violets in her collection. She has grown violets since she was three years old.

TIME OFF FOR A JUNGLE TRIP — A national plant society convention is not all learning about growing plants. Often the host city has interesting tours planned for convention goers. This group has just finished a jungle cruise and the three violet fanciers are about to go to lunch at Creighton's, an interesting restaurant near Ft. Lauderdale. Left to right are Mrs. Frank Burton, wife of the retiring AVS president; Neola Fogler of near Laurelville; and Mrs. George Phillips of Opa Locka, Fla.

RETIRING PRESIDENT AND VISITOR — Frank A. Burton of Old Saybrook, Conn., retiring president of the National African Violet Society turned over the gavel to Mrs. Dorothy Gray of East Detroit, Mich., when she was promoted from first vice president to the presidency. Here Burton talks to Mrs. Loren Fogler of near Laurelville about his job as president of this large group.

Every serious gardener should have a specialty. There should be one plant at least about which he has considerable know-how.

"But," says many a person, "I like 'em all too much. Why should I specialize in one flower?"

Mrs. Loren Fogler of near Laurelville, a gardener of excellence, will answer this question. She will tell you that it's fun knowing a lot about African Violets. And she does indeed know a lot about this universally loved houseplant.

She has had as many as 200 violets blooming in her home. Many of these are named varieties which she has grown from leaf slips. She has taken numerous prizes locally and last year was a winner in the African Violet show held by the Columbus African Violet Society — and this is a very large area show.

MRS. FOGLER is a member of the Columbus African Violet Society. Recently she set off to Miami, Fla., to attend the annual convention of the National African Violet Society.

In response to the request of the garden editor, Mrs. Fogler reported the convention highlights and sent back pictures as well.

Garden Gossip

Manley Carothers, rural mail carrier, has good news about blue birds. They are back. Once feared on the road to extinction blue birds are a fairly common sight these days.

Rural mail men know their birds. Judson Beougher once spotted an American eagle on his route.

The Red Emperor tulips out at the Montelius place "Pioneer Acres" were indeed marvelous this last week. The Monteluses have planted them in front of the house and very close together. Hyacinths were also to be found in the planting.

The daffodils at the Montelius place were blooming a merry pace, too.

Mrs. Harry Montelius is just as interested as her daughter, Ruth, in growing flowers. They are planting a pink and purple perennial garden this year.

We visited Handy Hatfield's garden on Sunset Drive last week. His daffodils were fabulous and we caught them at the peak of bloom. Each variety was carefully labeled. To my way of thinking a well labeled garden separates the men from the boy gardeners.

We heard a curious announcement at the Judges Council meeting at Kingwood Center last Friday. There is to be an All Horticultural Flower Show at the Cleveland Garden Center on May 15 and 16.

I view this new trend with interest and suspicion. Who is pushing who out in the cold? Are the arrangers wanting rid of the horticulturists? Or is the horticulturist tired of arrangements without flowers?

Mrs. James Moffitt has a charming border of yellow primroses. It was a delightful sight when I came upon it last week while visiting her garden. The Moffitts live on E. Franklin St. and there's never a week in the growing season that something of interest is not blooming. The Moffitt garden also had an outstanding collection of pink daffodils.

About this time of year the garden editor wanders out to see what came through the winter. My gift eremurus from Mrs. Bernard Savey got nipped by frost but it's doing well anyway. This tall spike plant, also known as dessert candle, is quite rare in this locality.

Two fine doricum plants which bloom along with tulips apparently are not coming up. Doronicum is a bright yellow daisy like perennial.

The gas plant is nowhere to be seen. Mine is almost 4-years - old and has never bloomed. It looks as though it's gone for good.

Jim Reichelderfer, 131 E. Union St., has had success with primroses from seed. Primrose like shade and dampness, but they are an agreeable plant. They ought to be more widely grown in this locality.

The old fashioned Japanese quince does not seem to be having a good year. This lovely old shrub blooms year after year with great faithfulness. It will get too large because it grows like lilacs from root sprouts. Pruning is the answer.

Mrs. Frank Bennet, 318 S. Court St., has a beautifully pruned and blooming specimen of Japanese quince. She also has nice mahonia, in bloom at present, too.

The James Scotts, 341 Northridge Road, have flowers the seasons through. Right now it's daffodils in various colors and form.

The forsythias put on a good show after all this spring. The Bob Dicks, 341 E. Franklin St., have a forsythia that is noteworthy because it has been pruned with skill. The result is a shrub of considerable grace.

Judge William Radcliff and Mrs. Radcliff protected their

Cancer Test Survivor Still Optimistic, Unafraid

CONSTANTINE, Mich. (AP) — Larry Rink and Harry Griffith had similar forms of cancer of the bone. Both fought for life last month in similar experimental operations.

Now Rink knows that Griffith is dead.

"It sort of shocked me at first," said Rink, 23, of the southwest Michigan community of Centreville. But, he said, he is still optimistic and is even shopping for an artificial leg.

Afraid? he was asked.

magnolia tree against the frost by covering it. By all means if your magnolia is small and young cover it. The warm weather has got to come sooner or later.

Don Merry of Wellston has a rose garden with 320 occupants. He says that 320 roses has proved to be a burden. For instance, to water them well in dry weather it took more than eight hours.

How come he has so many roses? Well besides being a rose fancier he has a misting house where he can root roses. One summer he rooted over 95 plants. That's a population explosion if we ever heard of one.

Mrs. Emmitt Barnhart heard Don Merry speak on "Mist Propagation" one time and bought herself a misting bubble. Now she is scheduled to speak before three garden clubs about rooting plants.

The C. A. Winners at 120 Watt St. have so many bright spring bulbs blooming along the front of their house it looks like colorful illustration in a children's book.

"No, not really. Not any more."

Doctors removed Rink's leg last May, hoping to check the progress of his tumor. It didn't work.

"Everybody knew except my wife and I that I had six chances out of seven it could come back," Rink said. "They never said anything to me about it."

But when Griffith, 63, of suburban Philadelphia, and Robert F. Allen, 29, of Tucson, Ariz., took part in a cancer-transplant experiment, Rink's doctors thought there was new hope.

Rink flew to Buffalo, N.Y., where doctors at Roswell Park Memorial Institute paired him with Thomas E. Welker, 21, of Monrad, Mont., and repeated the prospective cure.

Cancerous tissue was removed from each victim and transplanted into the other. It was hoped each man's body would build up antibodies to fight the foreign matter — and the victim's own cancer, as well.

Griffith died Monday despite the experiment. Doctors say Rink, Allen and Welker must be watched for some time before it will be known whether the new treatment helped them.

Violet Fancier At Convention

VIOLET FANCIER AND YOUNGEST MEMBER — Twelve-year-old Ruth Fuller (left), youngest member of NAVS is pictured here with Mrs. Loren Fogler of near Laurelville who consented to report to the convention highlight for the Herald Garden Page. Ruth Fuller lives in Largo, Fla. and has 80 violets in her collection. She has grown violets since she was three years old.

TIME OFF FOR A JUNGLE TRIP — A national plant society convention is not all learning about growing plants. Often the host city has interesting tours planned for convention goers. This group has just finished a jungle cruise and the three violet fanciers are about to go to lunch at Creighton's, an interesting restaurant near Ft. Lauderdale. Left to right are Mrs. Frank Burton, wife of the retiring AVS president; Neola Fogler of near Laurelville; and Mrs. George Phillips of Opa Locka, Fla.

RETIRING PRESIDENT AND VISITOR — Frank A. Burton of Old Saybrook, Conn., retiring president of the National African Violet Society turned over the gavel to Mrs. Dorothy Gray of East Detroit, Mich., when she was promoted from first vice president to the presidency. Here Burton talks to Mrs. Loren Fogler of near Laurelville about his job as president of this large group.

Every serious gardener should have a specialty. There should be one plant at least about which he has considerable know-how.

"But," says many a person, "I like 'em all too much. Why should I specialize in one flower?"

Mrs. Loren Fogler of near Laurelville, a gardener of excellence, will answer this question. She will tell you that it's fun knowing a lot about African Violets. And she does indeed know a lot about this universally loved houseplant.

She has had as many as 200 violets blooming in her home. Many of these are named varieties which she has grown from leaf slips. She has taken numerous prizes locally and last year was a winner in the African Violet show held by the Columbus African Violet Society — and this is a very large area show.

MRS. FOGLER is a member of the Columbus African Violet Society. Recently she set off to Miami, Fla., to attend the annual convention of the National African Violet Society.

In response to the request of the garden editor, Mrs. Fogler reported the convention highlights and sent back pictures as well.

Garden Gossip

Manley Carothers, rural mail carrier, has good news about blue birds. They are back. Once feared on the road to extinction blue birds are a fairly common sight these days.

Rural mail men know their birds. Judson Beougher once spotted an American eagle on his route.

The Red Emperor tulips out at the Montellus place "Pioneer Acres" were indeed marvelous this last week. The Montelluses have planted them in front of the house and very close together. Hyacinths were also to be found in the planting.

The daffodils at the Montellus place were blooming a merry pace, too.

Mrs. Harry Montellus is just as interested as her daughter, Ruth, in growing flowers. They are planting a pink and purple perennial garden this year.

We visited Handy Hatfield's garden on Sunset Drive last week. His daffodils were fabulous and we caught them at the peak of bloom. Each variety was carefully labeled. To my way of thinking a well labeled garden separates the men from the boy gardeners.

We heard a curious announcement at the Judges Council meeting at Kingwood Center last Friday. There is to be an All Horticultural Flower Show at the Cleveland Garden Center on May 15 and 16.

I view this new trend with interest and suspicion. Who is pushing who out in the cold? Are the arrangers wanting rid of the horticulturists? Or is the horticulturist tired of arrangements without flowers?

Mrs. James Moffitt has a charming border of yellow primroses. It was a delightful sight when I came upon it last week while visiting her garden. The Moffitts live on E. Franklin St. and there's never a week in the growing season that something of interest is not blooming.

The Moffitt garden also had an outstanding collection of pink daffodils.

About this time of year the garden editor wanders out to see what came through the winter. My gift eremurus from Mrs. Bernard Savy got nipped by frost but it's doing well anyway. This tall spike plant, also known as dessert candle, is quite rare in this locality.

Two fine doricum plants which bloom along with tulips apparently are not coming up. Doronicum is a bright yellow daisy like perennial.

The gas plant is nowhere to be seen. Mine is almost 4 years - old and has never bloomed. It looks as though it's gone for good.

Jim Reichelderfer, 131 E. Union St., has had success with primroses from seed. Primrose like shade and dampness, but they are an agreeable plant. They ought to be more widely grown in this locality.

The old fashioned Japanese quince does not seem to be having a good year. This lovely old shrub blooms year after year with great faithfulness. It will get too large because it grows like lilacs from root sprouts. Pruning is the answer.

Mrs. Frank Bennet, 318 S. Court St., has a beautifully pruned and blooming specimen of Japanese quince. She also has nice mahonia, in bloom at present, too.

The James Scotts, 341 Northridge Road, have flowers the seasons through. Right now it's daffodils in various colors and form.

The forsythias put on a good show after all this spring. The Bob Dicks, 341 E. Franklin St., have a forsythia that is noteworthy because it has been pruned with skill. The result is a shrub of considerable grace.

Cancer Test Survivor Still Optimistic, Unafraid

CONSTANTINE, Mich. (AP) — Larry Rink and ilary Griffith had similar forms of cancer of the bone. Both fought for life last month in similar experimental operations.

Now Rink knows that Griffith is dead.

"It sort of shocked me at first," said Rink, 23, of the southwest Michigan community of Centerville. But, he said, he is still optimistic and is even shopping for an artificial leg.

Afraid? he was asked.

magnolia tree against the frost by covering it. By all means if your magnolia is small and young cover it. The warm weather has got to come sooner or later.

Don Merry of Wellston has a rose garden with 320 occupants. He says that 320 roses has proved to be a burden. For instance, to water them well in dry weather it took more than eight hours.

How come he has so many roses? Well besides being a rose fancier he has a misting house where he can root roses. One summer he rooted over 95 plants. That's a population explosion if we ever heard of one.

Mrs. Emmitt Barnhart heard Don Merry speak on "Mist Propagation" one time and bought herself a misting bubble. Now she is scheduled to speak before three garden clubs about rooting plants.

The C. A. Winners at 120 Watt St. have so many bright spring bulbs blooming along the front of their house it looks like colorful illustration in a children's book.

Overlooks Mistake

NEW DELHI (AP) — Laughter erupted in Parliament when a member addressed speaker Hukam Singh as "madam." Silencing the laughter, the 71-year-old Singh, a Sikh who wears a full beard and turban, declared: "A man of my age does not feel concerned about such things."

"No, not really. Not any more."

Doctors removed Rink's leg last May, hoping to check the progress of his tumor. It didn't work.

"Everybody knew except my wife and I that I had six chances out of seven it could come back," Rink said. "They never said anything to me about it."

But when Griffith, 63, of suburban Philadelphia, and Robert F. Allen, 29, of Tucson, Ariz., took part in a cancer-transplant experiment, Rink's doctors thought there was new hope.

Rink flew to Buffalo, N.Y., where doctors at Roswell Park Memorial Institute paired him with Thomas E. Welker, 21, of Monrad, Mont., and repeated the prospective cure.

Cancerous tissue was removed from each victim and transplanted into the other. It was hoped each man's body would build up antibodies to fight the foreign matter — and the victim's own cancer, as well.

Griffith died Monday despite the experiment. Doctors say Rink, Allen and Welker must be watched for some time before it will be known whether the new treatment helped them.

Local Red Cross officials announced today that there is a continuing need for volunteers to serve at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Chillicothe.

Both men and women are needed in the areas of craftwork, woodworking, radio, therapy, recreation, office work and many other fields.

Training is provided by the VA Hospital before volunteers are placed in a volunteer position. This orientation and training will be held three Mondays next month: May 9, 16, and 23, from 9:30 a. m. until 3 p. m.

Officials also noted there is a need for volunteers to help with mending the patients' clothes. This takes no training, just a day a month and a desire to be of service. Transportation is furnished to and from the hospital by the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

Interested persons who would like further information about volunteering their time and services at the VA Hospital, Berger Hospital or local rest homes are to call GR 4-5736 or contact Mrs. Walter Garner, volunteers chairman.

Sociologists Are Rapped By Baptist

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) —The president of the Southern Baptist Convention has disputed a report of two California sociologists that prejudice against Jews finds a basis in Christian churches.

Dr. Wayne Dehoney, head of the 25 million-member denomination, issued a statement Tuesday in reply to the findings of Charles Y. Glock, director of the University of California Research Center, and Rodney Stark, a research sociologist.

"Bigotry and defamation such as anti-Semitism are deplorable," Dehoney said, "but to label religious conviction about the 'Christian doctrine of salvation' as 'race prejudice' is the worst kind of defamation."

The California report was based on a national survey which indicated at least 25 per cent of those with anti-Jewish feelings "have a religious basis for their prejudices."

Charging that the logic of Glock and Stark "has slipped," Dehoney, pastor of First Baptist church here, said: "By their same reasoning, the Jews could be charged with racism and with being anti-Oriental because they believe that Japanese Buddhists are outside the realm of God's salvation for not believing in the Jehovah and not accepting the Old Testament revelation."

The county chairman said the Series E Bond (the payroll saver bond), which was first offered for sale 25 years ago on May 1, experienced the highest March sales nationally since 1949.

Impounding of Violators' Cars Won't Work, Claim

NEW YORK (AP) — When traffic laws are flouted, should the car be jailed instead of the driver?

Sounds like a great idea, road safety experts agreed in a survey today, but there's a snag: It wouldn't work.

For one thing, the experts pointed out, there isn't enough municipal storage space to accommodate even a fraction of the automobiles which would wind up in custody.

For another, hordes of workers depend on their cars for transportation and a serious breakdown of commerce and industry would threaten immediately.

The suggestion that automobiles involved in traffic violations be removed from circulation was set forth by William Colson, past president of the Trial Lawyers Association in a speech in Miami Tuesday.

Colson said the offending car owner should be charged storage costs until a court decided to give him back his set of wheels.

His proposal found few takers. "It would be an administrative monstrosity," protested Traffic Inspector Joseph Halter of the Philadelphia police department.

"In 1965 there were 165,000 hazardous traffic violations in Philadelphia alone. What about out-of-town violators? Would you ship the drivers back to California, or wherever?"

"It would constitute a possibly unequal punishment — some people need their cars to make a living," said Division Traffic Inspector N.L. Kector of Los Angeles.

"Suppose there is one car in the family and a son is driving and commits a violation," said Maj. George W. Pinckerton, head of the Pennsylvania State Police Department Traffic Bureau. "If you impound the car you penalize the mother and father."

A spokesman for automobile drivers was scornful. Said Samuel T. Milliken, manager of the Keystone-Philadelphia Automobile Club: "Put the car in jail? Sure, why not? Just convert all parking garages and lots into jailhouses. Swear in garage attendants as policemen. What matter if it slows the wheels of industry to a grinding standstill?"

The only outright booster for Colson's idea was Richard McLaughlin, Massachusetts registrar of motor vehicles. He has already put a bill into the state legislative mill which would impound for 60 days the cars of drivers twice convicted of driving with invalid licenses.

Business Briefs

CHICAGO — Four new directors were elected to the board of Container Corporation of America at the annual meeting of shareholders held here today. The new directors are:

Robert O. Anderson, chairman and chief executive officer of the Atlantic Refining Co. of Philadelphia, Pa.

William P. Drake, president and chief executive officer of Pennsalt Chemical Corporation, Philadelphia.

Spencer D. Moseley, president of General American Transportation Corporation, Chicago.

Henry G. Van der Eb, executive vice president of Container Corporation of America.

Shareholders attending the meeting also heard a review of past results and current packaging prospects from Leo H. Schoenhofen, president and chief executive officer of the packaging company, which has a paperboard mill in Circleville.

In the first quarterly release of earnings by the Murphy Co. J. S. Mack, chairman of the board and president, reported a substantial increase in earnings on a sales gain of 9.7 per cent. Part of this improvement can be attributed to an earlier Easter, with the balance reflecting favorable consumer demand, he said.

On Mar. 31 of both years there were 513 stores in operation, including the one in Circleville, with 21 new locations under contract this year compared with 13 a year ago. The company had previously announced plans for an increased rate of expansion.

630 Men's Suits Stolen in Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Burglars broke into a clothing store here Wednesday shortly after closing time and made off with 630 men's suits, police reported.

Grow healthy alfalfa with Alfa-tox for weevil control. Absolutely no residue in milk.

Here's the nearest thing yet to a "perfect" alfalfa insecticide. Spray Alfa-tox... which contains both Diazinon* and methoxychlor... for control of alfalfa weevil. Control you can depend on to protect alfalfa against this destructive insect. And just about every other insect known to attack alfalfa.

A properly timed spray of Alfa-tox will protect your first cutting. Check alfalfa bud tips frequently and treat by the time 30-50 per cent of the bud tips show signs of larvae feeding. This provides effective control of larvae which have already hatched, as well as larvae which hatch following application.

Under normal conditions, control of weevil with Alfa-tox lasts for two to three weeks, which is usually ample time to assure protection of your alfalfa until harvest of the first cutting. If a repeat application is necessary, it may be made up to seven days before cutting alfalfa.

You can be sure of no danger of insecticide residue in milk with Alfa-tox. All you have to do is wait seven days after spraying before you graze livestock or cut for green chop or hay.

Ask your supplier for Alfa-tox... an insecticide you can depend on to be effective.

Historical Society Ready To Accept New Members

The books have been opened for membership in the Pickaway County Historical Society.

This announcement was made today by Mrs. J. B.

Work, chairman of the Historical Society's Membership Committee. The preparation of necessary records for member applications marks one phase of the organization's concentrated effort to increase its membership.

Mrs. Work considers Pickaway County as having the greatest historical background of any area in Ohio. "Because of this untapped reservoir of history, the Society has a duty and responsibility to search out and record the deeds and accomplishments of those who lived in the past," she said.

"Many times," she added, "our way of life is taken for granted, not realizing that it was the efforts of those living here in earlier years who laid the foundation for all we have today."

A SAMPLING of opinions show that much interest has been expressed in the Society's effort to provide a museum for Pickaway County. This project has been established as a primary goal.

Mrs. Work, along with Society president Rex Haecker, invites all persons interested in preserving the historic traditions of Pickaway County to join the organization and participate in its activities.

As a service, copies of the "Pickaway Quarterly" are sent to members. Programs of an historical nature are provided at each regular meeting.

Walters Urges Withdrawal Of Postal Savings Accounts

Circleville Postmaster Charles Walters today urged depositors with postal savings certificates to withdraw their accounts from post offices as soon as possible or as soon as the anniversary dates on their certificates are reached.

The Postal Savings System was abolished Mar. 27, 1966, with the signing of Public Law 89-377 by President Lyndon B. Johnson. Postmaster Walters pointed out that as of April 28, 1966, no deposits can be accepted and no new accounts can be opened. He said that interest will end on the anniversary date of each certificate.

The Postmaster said that for convenience all certificates held by a depositor may be cashed at the same time and interest will be paid for each full month they have been outstanding beyond three months from the interest date.

The Postal Savings System was established Jan. 1, 1911, to get money out of hiding and to attract savings of a large number of immigrants who were accustomed to saving at post offices in their own country. Also, it served as a safe depository for people who had lost confidence in private banks.

Paul Mayberry, vice president in charge of the Babe Ruth and Pony Leagues, noted he needed about 65 more boys.

However, he pointed out that a number of boys eligible to play are members of the high school baseball and track teams. They have not yet had a chance to register.

Burgess Lugs Potent Bat For Chisox

2-Run Pinch Hit By Paunchy Star Assures Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Smoky Burgess, the catcher who could pass for one of those paunchy movie bartenders, doesn't worry about the tools of ignorance lugged around by most receivers.

Burgess lugs around only one tool—his bat.

And he used it Wednesday delivering a two-run pinch single that helped the Chicago White Sox to an 8-6 victory over Boston.

A burly 39-year-old veteran, Burgess stands 5-foot-8 and weighs 192 pounds—most of it look the part but he happens to be the most prolific pinch hitter in baseball history. That's why the White Sox let the other guys wear the shin guards and chest protectors.

Everytime Burgess delivers a pinch hit, he adds to his major league record. Wednesday's pinch hit was his third this season and the 118th of his 17-year major league career. It helped the Sox to their 9th victory in 12 starts.

In the only other American League game played Wednesday, Washington blanked New York 2-0 on Mike McCormick's five-hitter. The other games on the schedule were postponed because of rain and cold.

In the National League, Cincinnati downed San Francisco 8-6, Houston defeated St. Louis 3-1 and Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 4-1.

Chicago broke a 5-5 tie in the seventh inning on two walks and a single by Ron Hansen. Then Burgess stroked his single and while he was chugging down the first base line, Ken Berry scored from third and Hansen took off from first and raced home with the Sox' third run of the inning.

McCormick, who was a $50,000 bonus boy with the New York Giants a decade ago, and won the National League earned run crown in 1960, is making a comeback as a Yankee-killer.

The shutout extended McCormick's streak to 21 scoreless innings against the onetime Bombers, who have now lost 12 of 14 starts.

McCormick developed arm trouble in 1962 and drifted to Baltimore and finally the minors before being sold to the Senators in 1965. At 27, he's making a new career for himself in the American League.

McCormick got the runs he needed when Ken McMullen smacked a two-run double off Al Downing in the third inning. The hit was one of only three that Downing gave up but it was enough to beat the young left-hander.

picture and mementos of the immortal Yankee outfielder, who died of throat cancer in 1938 at the age of 53.

"These are only a fraction, some things I managed to keep for my own," she said. "Truck loads of stuff have been hauled to the Babe Ruth Shrine in Cooperstown, N.Y."

"The Babe always said the 1927 Yankees were the best—the best ever assembled, and the Babe knew. He thought the 1932 team was next."

Mrs. Ruth manages to keep busy. She says she sees about two-thirds of the Yankee home games and also occasionally goes out to watch the Mets because of her admiration for General Manager George Weiss, one of the Babe's closest friends in the old days.

She travels considerably and is active in the Babe Ruth leagues for players between the ages of 13 and 18.

U.S. Sets Sights On Turn in War

This is a principal reason why Johnson administration planners have now made the tentative assumption that around the turn of the year or early in 1967 Communist losses will exceed the ability of the Communists to maintain their manpower levels through recruitment and through infiltration of forces from North Viet Nam.

Officials say that achieving this point in turning the tide of the war depends on several other assumptions. One of these is that the developing political situation in South Viet Nam will not seriously impair military operations during the coming summer and fall. Not all Washington authorities agree that this is a reasonable assumption at this time, since recent demonstrations against the Saigon government slowed military operations.

Other important assumptions underlying the forecast of a turning point in the war are:

1. That the Viet Cong will not radically alter their strategy and seek to avoid combat in the months ahead in order to reduce their loss rate.

2. That North Viet Nam and Red China will not radically alter the major dimensions of the war by intervention which would expand it into a different kind of conflict.

In summary, the projection of a turning point is based on the assumption that the war will continue to develop along the lines which have characterized the conflict in recent months.

According to figures and rough estimates now available from officials here, the Viet Cong suffered manpower losses in killed, captured, wounded, and defections during the first four months of this year amounting to considerably more than 20,000 men. Government figures show a total of about 15,000 Communists killed in action and probably another 5,000 men counted as defectors.

In the same four months, however, the Viet Cong replacements were estimated at about 32,000, consisting of an infiltration of troops from North Viet Nam at 4,500 a month and recruitment in the South of guerrilla fighters, porters and the like at the rate of 3,500 per month.

U. S. strategists agree that, as these figures suggest, Viet Cong forces still are increasing in spite of the fact that U.S. troops with their heavy firepower have been building up rapidly in South Viet Nam for a year now. American government estimates put Viet Cong main force strength at 47,750 in June 1965, 70,100 in December 1965, and 90,000 in April 1966. In addition, local guerrilla and supporting forces of the Communists are estimated at 100,000 to 120,000.

U.S. military authorities estimate that the Viet Cong forces now have 111 combat battalions at their disposal and will have 155 by the end of this year. At that level, U.S. experts say, the Communists probably will require about 150 tons of supplies daily.

The dominant view in administration planning is that heavy and sustained air strikes against the Communist supply lines do and will put a ceiling on replacement capacity and do limit the ability of the Viet Cong to maintain their strength.

U.S. authorities also assume that the Viet Cong's ability to recruit fighters in the countryside in South Viet Nam is limited and will decrease as the war goes against them.

Similarly, authorities here say that Viet Cong defections increase and those of the South Vietnamese forces decrease in periods when relative political stability prevails in Saigon and when it appears that the Communists are being beaten militarily.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and various military leaders said toward the end of last year that "we have stopped losing the war."

They have shied away, however, from making any over-all claims of victory or trying to lay down a blueprint for victory in the future.

The most that officials claim now for the point at which Viet Cong losses would begin to run ahead of replacements is that it should have a damaging effect on Viet Cong morale.

On the other hand, officials from President Johnson down are opposed to making more than tentative assumptions about future developments in Viet Nam which are beyond their control. They cannot rule out the possibility of a radical change in Communist strategy either to escalate the war, or to pull back from combat.

People Lukewarm about Viet War

Red China's Anti-U.S. Propoganda May Be Only Spur to Productivity

EDITOR'S NOTE — This article on Viet Nam and China was brought out of the Communist mainland by a British author who, unlike American reporters, had a chance to visit there. The Associated Press asked him to write of what he found.

By FRANK TUOHY

HANGCHOW, China, (AP) — Here in China, people are surprisingly lukewarm about the war in Viet Nam. I assume this is the official point of view, because official views are all the visiting foreigners get.

Yet the Chinese certainly want foreigners to think they are ready for war. Take, for example, the curious goings-on outside my Nanking hotel.

Early on a Sunday morning — and Sunday is a rest day in China as in other countries — gangs of blue-clad girls were dragging in truckloads of earth from outside, and others were stamping it down on a raised mound beyond some magnolia trees. I asked what all the girls were doing.

"They are building an air raid shelter."

I have seen some more air-raid shelters in China, but not many. The Nanking hotel one perplexes me still. Why build a shelter for the foreign guests of a tourist hotel? Why make such a show of it? Are foreigners supposed to believe that the Chinese expect war? And further, do the Chinese really fear war, or is the Central Committee merely using the threat to boost morale after recent reverses on the economic and diplomatic fronts?

The position with regard to the Vietnamese conflict is extraordinarily complex.

Posters and cartoons show cowardly GIs surrendering to Vietnamese soldiers. There is a Vietnamese martyr saint, Yuan Wen-tse, who was executed in October 1964 for allegedly attempting to blow up Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara at Saigon. I saw an interesting play about him on my last night in Peking.

At all films, concerts and operas I went to, the audience applauded nationalist sentiments, but this time there was no clapping until the final curtain.

Furthermore, nowhere in China have I seen a picture of Ho Chi Minh, and everyone is extremely cautious on the question of support.

A very intelligent and neutral Vietnamese journalist I know

was told in one factory: "Viet Nam is an incentive for us to increase our production."

She asked: "Do you mean to work hard in order to send your goods to North Viet Nam?"

"No, to help us encourage our workers to increase their productivity."

Almost the same words were used to me in a commune outside Canton. The group-mind of China was sure of this point.

Yet I feel that the Chinese believe that the Viet Cong is composed of South Vietnamese who are heroically liberating their country. The Chinese compare the situation to their own in 1945-49. Then they had finished a war with Japan, as the Vietnamese later ousted the French.

Then, there remained Chiang Kai-shek and his followers, in Communist eyes corrupt and nepotistic, just like Ngo Dinh Diem and Nguyen Cao Ky. Then, there were Americans suing for peace while supporting the Kuomintang government with arms and supplies. Then, too, there was a liberation front, headed by Mao Tse-tung.

Dean Rusk has said that China is seeking to establish a hegemony in Asia under the pretext of supporting wars of liberation. The Chinese answer, which is acceptable when you have seen the country itself, is that they have much too much to do within their own frontiers to harbor such ambitions. The cautious sympathy they profess for the Vietnamese would seem to support this.

What concerns China are American intentions. Shelters may be few — the only one I saw in Peking was on the university campus — but there is plenty of evidence of a militaristic mood.

In some ways the face of China already is the face of a country at war. Trains and public places are crowded with soldiers. Large groups of these were being harangued in the museum of the Chinese revolution in Peking. In the courtyard of the military museum, children lined up on a freezing day to inspect the reassembled wreckage of a U2 and two pilotless spy planes.

China wants to consider all her martial activities as the result of America's evil intentions. The bringing down of yet another U.S. pilotless spy plane, two days after my arrival, was treated as part of a regular series of booster-shots for public morale.

How genuine is all this propaganda? Is it for war or just for increased productivity?

U.S. military authorities estimate that the Viet Cong forces now have 111 combat battalions at their disposal and will have 135 by the end of this year. At that level, U.S. experts say, the Communists probably will require about 150 tons of supplies daily.

The dominant view in administration planning is that heavy and sustained air strikes against the Communist supply lines do and will put a ceiling on replacement capacity and do limit the ability of the Viet Cong to maintain their strength.

U.S. authorities also assume that the Viet Cong's ability to recruit fighters in the countryside in South Viet Nam is limited and will decrease as the war goes against them.

Similarly, authorities here say that Viet Cong defections increase and those of the South Vietnamese forces decrease in periods when relative political stability prevails in Saigon and when it appears that the Communists are being beaten militarily.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and various military leaders said toward the end of last year that "we have stopped losing the war."

They have shied away, however, from making any over-all claims of victory or trying to lay down a blueprint for victory in the future.

The most that officials claim now for the point at which Viet Cong losses would begin to run ahead of replacements is that it should have a damaging effect on Viet Cong morale.

On the other hand officials from President Johnson down are opposed to making more than tentative assumptions about future developments in Viet Nam which are beyond their control. They cannot rule out the possibility of a radical change in Communist strategy either to escalate the war, or to pull back from combat.

People Lukewarm about Viet War

Red China's Anti-U.S. Propoganda May Be Only Spur to Productivity

EDITOR'S NOTE — This article on Viet Nam and China was brought out of the Communist mainland by a British author who, unlike American reporters, had a chance to visit there. The Associated Press asked him to write of what he found.

By FRANK TUOHY

HANGCHOW, China (AP) — Here in China, people are surprisingly lukewarm about the war in Viet Nam. I assume this is the official point of view, because official views are all the visiting foreigner gets.

Yet the Chinese certainly want foreigners to think they are ready for war. Take, for example, the curious goings-on outside my Nanking hotel.

Early on a Sunday morning — and Sunday is a rest day in China as in other countries — gangs of blue-clad girls were dragging in truckloads of earth from outside, and others were stamping it down on to a raised mound beyond some magnolia trees. I asked what all the girls were doing.

"They are building an air raid shelter."

I have seen some more air-raid shelters in China, but not many. The Nanking hotel one perplexes me still. Why build a shelter for the foreign guests of a tourist hotel? Why make such a show of it? Are foreigners supposed to believe that the Chinese expect war? And further, do the Chinese really fear war, or is the Central Committee merely using the threat to boost morale after recent reverses on the economic and diplomatic fronts?

The position with regard to the Vietnamese conflict is extraordinarily complex.

Posters and cartoons show cowardly GIs surrendering to Vietnamese soldiers. There is a Vietnamese martyr saint, Yuan Wentse, who was executed in October 1964 for allegedly attempting to blow up Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara at Saigon. I saw an interesting play about him on my last night in Peking.

At all films, concerts and operas I went to, the audience applauded nationalist sentiments, but this time there was no clapping until the final curtain.

Furthermore, nowhere in China have I seen a picture of Ho Chi Minh, and everyone is extremely cautious on the question of support.

A very intelligent and neutral Vietnamese journalist I know

was told in one factory: "Viet Nam is an incentive for us to increase our production."

She asked: "Do you mean to work hard in order to send your goods to North Viet Nam?"

"No, to help us encourage our workers to increase their productivity."

Almost the same words were used to me in a commune outside Canton. The group-mind of China was sure of this point.

Yet I feel that the Chinese believe that the Viet Cong is composed of South Vietnamese who are heroically liberating their country. The Chinese compare the situation to their own in 1945-49. Then they had finished a war with Japan, as the Vietnamese later ousted the French.

Then, there remained Chiang Kai-shek and his followers, in Communist eyes corrupt and nepotistic, just like Ngo Dinh Diem and Nguyen Cao Ky. Then, there were Americans suing for peace while supporting the Kuomintang government with arms and supplies. Then, too, there was a liberation front, headed by Mao Tse-tung.

Dean Rusk has said that China is seeking to establish a hegemony in Asia under the pretext of supporting wars of liberation. The Chinese answer, which is acceptable when you have seen the country itself, is that they have much too much

Tour Business Chief Seeks Moon Franchise

OURAY, Colo. (AP) — Francis Kuboske wants to expand his tour business.

Kuboske has asked the Colorado Public Utilities Commission to issue him a certificate authorizing operation of a sight-seeing business on the moon.

to do within their own frontiers to harbor such ambitions. The cautious sympathy they profess for the Vietnamese would seem to support this.

What concerns China are American intentions. Shelters may be few — the only one I saw in Peking was on the university campus — but there is plenty of evidence of a militaristic mood.

In some ways the face of China already is the face of a country at war. Trains and public places are crowded with soldiers. Large groups of these were being harangued in the museum of the Chinese revolution in Peking. In the courtyard of the military museum, children lined up on a freezing day to inspect the reassembled wreckage of a U2 and two pilotless spy planes.

China wants to consider all her martial activities as the result of America's evil intentions. The bringing down of yet another U.S. pilotless spv plane, two days after my arrival, was treated as part of a regular series of booster-shots for public morale.

How genuine is all this propaganda? Is it for war or just for increased productivity?
